ABRIDGED PBS KVIE

Your source for local news

Ryan Lillis
Associate General Manager,
News

There's something refreshing about a place that connects us with the past.

Shelley Ho, a producer with PBS KVIE and a visual journalist for our online news service at abridged.org, took readers inside such a place last month. Stardust Vintage Emporium recently moved to a new location in the former Scandinavian Designs building on Sunrise Boulevard in Fair Oaks.

Shelley's story was not just about a vintage store. It was about a family's passion and the community they've built.

"Our favorite thing is when someone walks through the door and their jaw drops. That makes it for us," Karen Chance, owner of Stardust Vintage Emporium, told PBS KVIE.

Chance comes from an interior design background and has loved collecting antiques since her early 20s. She began her career in the antiques business as a vendor at the former Midway Antique Mall on Madison Avenue in North Highlands.

"I ended up with four booths and loved it and said, 'I think I could do a really cool job of this and do something even more than just a store, more of a destination,'" she said.

The family business works with 50 vendors, with another 190 vendors on its waiting list. The store caters to a wide variety of customers, with items ranging from the 1950s to the early 2000s. Nostalgia is a big appeal for customers of Stardust.

"People love going, 'Oh my god, I had that when I was a little kid, or my grandmother had that or my mother had that,' and it reminds them of their childhood. It reminds them of happy times with their family," Chance said.

And because spaces like Stardust are more than stores, the owners are working on adding experiences that build community. They intend to open a small movie theater and plan to introduce parking lot events, including sales and car shows.

As Chance said, customers of Stardust often come in to take pictures and talk to a friend. Or, she said, "They can come in and find something that really means something to someone."

Discover the extraordinary strategies and ingenious tricks that animal parents employ to give their young a head start in life. Filmed over 3 years, on six continents, and in 23 countries, this 5-part series, narrated by Sir David Attenborough, tells the stories of astonishing animal behaviors shaped by the environments they inhabit. Each habitat has its own unique challenges, but as the world changes rapidly around them, some parents have to adapt to a world shaped by humans. The stakes couldn't be higher — success for all parents ensures the future of life on our planet.

Venture to the grasslands of Zambezi to see how wild dogs must focus the energy of their unruly teenagers for survival. Watch an elephant mother make difficult choices between the safety of her baby and the quest for water and food. Follow orcas teaching their offspring to hunt blue whales, and journey to the rainforests of Indonesia to watch orangutans teaching their young the ways of jungle living.

NOVA: Can Dogs Talk?

February 4 at 9PM

Witness astonishing moments that challenge our assumptions about animal intelligence. A growing number of dog owners claim their dogs can talk, thanks to innovative word buttons that seem to unlock a new realm of canine communication. But are these dogs truly understanding what we're saying — or is this just clever conditioning? To find out, scientists are conducting the largest animal communication study in history, analyzing millions of button presses from thousands of dogs worldwide.

Trace the rich, complex relationship between Black and Jewish Americans in the new 4-part series from Dr. Henry Louis Gates, Jr. — a relationship defined by solidarity and strained by division.

Drawn together by racism and antisemitism, the two communities forged civic and cultural bonds, especially during the civil rights era. The series explores both the challenges and enduring promise of that alliance.

See how trials of exile, faith, migration, and solidarity shaped their joint story through the 1920s. Discover how Black and Jewish communities collaborated in music, film, and fighting fascism through the early 20th century. And chronicle the 1960s “Grand Alliance” as Black and Jewish communities fought for civil rights in a transformative interracial coalition, highlighting activism, collaboration, and the tensions that tested their solidarity.
