ABRIDGED PBS KVIE

Your source for local news

Ryan Lillis
Associate General Manager,
News

When voters went to the polls across the Sacramento region on June 2, Abridged by PBS KVIE was already at work — tracking races up and down the ballot, from Placer County to Davis, and helping readers make sense of what was at stake.

That's what Abridged does. Our local news service covers the stories that shape daily life in the Sacramento region: local government, schools, arts, health and the communities of Yolo County and beyond. It's journalism rooted here, built for the people who live here.

The June primary put that mission on full display. Our reporters worked past midnight on Election Day, tracking several key races closely, including the Sacramento County supervisor contests, Measure V in Davis and California's newly redrawn 6th and 7th congressional districts. The team provided live updates through the night — and kept readers informed in the days after, as vote counting continued.

The 6th District race was one of the most watched in the state. A crowded field competed for the newly drawn seat, covering parts of Sacramento, Yolo and Placer counties. Among the candidates: incumbent Rep. Kevin Kiley, who left the Republican Party to run as an independent; former state Sen. Richard Pan; and Planned Parenthood executive Lauren Babb Tomlinson.

The 7th District drew nearly as much attention. Longtime Rep. Doris Matsui and Sacramento City Council member Mai Vang led the pack in a race centered on generational change and immigration policy.

We balanced coverage of those important national campaigns with stories on the Sacramento County Office of Education board races, local City Council races and the Yolo County supervisor contest, ensuring local voters had the context they needed at every level of the ballot.

We tracked Measure V — a closely watched Davis ballot measure on a proposed 1,800-home development — and continued our commitment to filling a gap of quality public service journalism in Yolo County by organizing a local elections forum there in partnership with CalMatters and Yolo Local.

This is Abridged: public media journalism, without the paywall, for the Sacramento region.

Visit abridged.org for more.
